Australian Paper confirms selected price increases

Australian Paper has confirmed a price increase for selected uncoated woodfree copy and printing papers effective from July.

“Australian Paper regularly reviews all components of our manufacturing and supply chain processes to ensure that we continue to provide our customers with superior service, high quality locally made products and market competitive pricing.

“Following a sustained period of upward pressure on a number of our key input costs including energy, transport, logistics, and raw materials, we have notified our customers of the decision to implement a market wide price increase on selected uncoated woodfree copy and printing papers”, said Andrew Menck, General Manager Sales at Australian Paper.

“We remain committed to continuing to offer a full range of premium products to the Australian market backed by a high level of service to our customers. Australian Paper greatly values the market’s support for our local paper manufacturing operations and we will work closely with our customers as we implement these necessary increases”, said Mr Menck.

Australian Paper contributes more than $900 million to Australia’s GDP annually and its Maryvale Mill is also one of the largest employers in Victoria’s Latrobe Valley.

The price increases will be between 3 to 5% and will take effect from July 2017.
